PELAGIANISM

According to PELAGIUS (arrived Rome @ 400) ① Adam was created mortal and would have died whether he sinned or not.

② His sin was not transmitted to his posterity and man can live altogether without sin.

③ Grace (divine aid) is not necessary

④ Sir becomes an act and it has no existence apart from the act.

⑤ Every child is born in some sort of ignorance as Adam.

Plagiarism was condemned by several agencies held between 412 & 418

Christianity regards Judaism as of divine ordination but only preparatory to the coming of Christ, and hence imperfect. It holds that heathenism is debased.

The sacerdotal institution was adopted from Judaism, consolidated by SAINT AUGUSTINE and culminated in the Papacy so that membership in the Church, and an acknowledgment of the hierarchy, become essential to salvation - a view which many of the Anglican community recognize 700 of Gaenios' soldiers in Constantinople fled into a church, an orthodox church of Solas near the palace. There they were surrounded and on personal order of the emperor Arcadius were either cut down or burned to death. Gaenios escaped & tried to gain a foothold in Thrace. Later he made primitive rafts to cross back into Asia minor. FR AVITTA appeared with a Roman fleet and destroyed the primitive rafts. Gaenios turned north through Thrace. Roman soldiers followed from all the way to the Senate, but he had them killed at the entrance the laboratory.

The account generally state that

PELAGIANISM

A heresy began shortly after 400 A.D. by a British monk, PELAGIUS. Its teaching rejected the doctrine of original sin, emphasized the natural over the supernatural to the extent that it was impossible to attain salvation without grace. Its teaching was ably refuted by St. Augustine.

Pelagronian was condemned by the Council of Constance (411) and the Council of Milevis (416). It died
